Appendix III: Torah-based stock prediction

To understand this algorithm, start with reading the instructions/parameters numbered 1-4

2. Starting from the point which is 3 degrees in front of the lunar node(The 24th degree in this case), make twelve equal 30 degree sectors around the chart.

Remember to continuously apply parameter number 2 relative to the location of the lunar node. For instance in the chart above, the lunar node is at 21 degrees; therefore you draw the 30 degree sectors from a starting point at 3 degrees in front of the lunar node--the 24th degree in this case. You keep doing this as the lunar node travels so that when the lunar node goes to the 20th degree, you would draw 30 degree sectors throughout the chart starting from the 23rd degree. When the lunar node goes to the 19th degree--same thing.....an so and so forth

3. Now starting from the 30 degree sector where the lunar node is located within, designate that sector and every other sector to foresee a drop in the Dow Jones when the sun travels through the sector. We can call the sectors Dow drop prediction sectors.(see above)

4. The other remaining sectors can be designated to foresee a rise in the Dow Jones. We can call those sectors Dow rise prediction sectors.

Because of this repeated interchange going from drop prediction sector to rise prediction sector as the sun travels from one sector to the next, we will call this algorithm the "Alternating Sector Algorithm"

On the next page is the application of this algorithm to the daily historical percentage changes of the Dow Jones Industrial average since 1896. The times of when the Sun traveled through the Dow drop prediction sector (as illustrated above) since 1896 are indicated in the data. Any areas in the data that are not labeled Dow drop prediction sector is the time when the sun was traveling through the Dow rise prediction sectors.

An analysis of the data and how the correlation can be further quantified using Judaism sabbatical concepts can be seen after.

Appendix III: Torah-based stock prediction

"Dow drop prediction sector" indicates the time frame when the sun traveled through the 30 degree sector designated (read previous page) for Dow drop prediction. The empty areas indicate when the sun traveled through the 30 sector designated for Dow rise prediction.

The data indicates that this algorithm being applied since 1897 yielded an investor 69% of total Dow returns.... with that same investor only being in the market for half the time(conceptualize only being in the market when the sun travels through the designated Dow rise prediction sectors). Being in the market half the time would ideally cut the risk in half. In this case, expectations were exceeded. The downside of applying this algorithm--as one would only be in the market half the time--is that the highs of the market are difficult to catch. The individual years of extreme lows for the Dow historically, however, were completely avoided in some cases of applying the algorithm. For example, in 1931, the Dow dropped 52%. Applying the algorithm that year and conceptualizing only being in the market when the sun traveled through the designated Dow rise prediction sectors, we yielded a positive 11%.

After unsuccessfully trying to discover--astrologically--a way to find something to improve the risk/reward ratio of this algorithm. I decided to turn to the Torah for help.
"At the end of every seven years, you shall celebrate the remission year. The idea of the remission year is that every creditor shall remit any debt owed by his neighbor and brother when God's remission year comes around. You may collect from the alien, but if you have any claim against your brother for a debt, you must relinquish it...." (Deuteronomy 15:1–6)

The correlation between Jewish Sabbatical years and major declines/crashes in stock prices is heavily studied. In the Judaism tradition, the number 7 holds great significance. Shabbat is observed on the 7th day of a 7-day cycle, the shmita or sabbatical year is observed on the 7th year of a 7 year cycle, and the Jubilee year is celebrated at the end of seven cycles of shmita.

I found a way to apply this concept of "every 7th year" to the algorithm and further improve its risk/reward profile. What I did was simply reverse the parameters of the algorithm during every 7th year of a 7 year cycle. Whereas normally, the sun traveling through a Dow drop prediction sector would mean the prediction of a market decline--now, in making use of the "every 7th year" concept by reversing the algorithm only during the 7th year, the sun traveling through a Dow drop prediction sector(during that 7th year) starts to mean the prediction of a market rise and vice versa... the sun traveling through a Dow rise prediction sector(during that 7th year) starts to mean the prediction of a market drop. See the results on the next page. Please note that I am not applying the actual Shmita years; I am simply applying that "every 7th year" concept.

After applying the concept of "every 7th year," we can observe an improvement to the risk/reward profile of the algorithm. The data indicates that this algorithm being applied since 1897--while reversing the parameters of the algorithm every 7th year-- yielded an investor around 84% of total Dow returns.... with that same investor only being in the market for half the time(conceptualize only being in the market when the sun travels through the designated Dow rise prediction sectors). Being in the market half the time would ideally cut the risk in half. Once again, expectations were exceeded. If you go back to the previous results, and compare them, you would notice the years where the algorithm was reversed and how that reversal had a positive effect on the outcome in most cases.

I decided to take it one step further and add a second reversal year to the cycle to see how that would effect the risk/reward profile. See the next page for the results.

The data indicates that this algorithm being applied since 1897--while reversing the parameters of the algorithm every 7th year and the year before-- yielded an investor around 94% of total Dow returns.... with that same investor only being in the market for half the time(conceptualize only being in the market when the sun travels through the designated Dow rise prediction sectors). Being in the market half the time would ideally cut the risk in half. Once again, expectations were exceeded. If you go back to the previous results, and compare them, you would notice the years where the algorithm was reversed and how that reversal had a positive effect on the outcome in most cases.

In this next case, I will apply the concept of "rest" to the algorithm. We simply replace where we applied a reversal of the algorithm on every 7th year. We change it to non-use of the algorithm while staying in the market throughout that entire year. If we use the previous example where we reversed the parameters of the algorithm every 7th year and the year before and change that year before from a reversal of the algorithm to a non-use of it while staying in the market throughout that year, we can produce something more in line with both the concept of "every seventh year" and also the concept of "rest." Here is the result on the next page.

The data indicates that this algorithm being applied since 1897 --as we reverse the parameters of the algorithm every 7th year and also apply a non-use of it to the year before while at the same time staying in the market throughout the entirety of that year before-- yielded an investor around 111% of total Dow returns.... with that same investor only being in the market for, this time, a little more than half the time.

In this next case, I will apply the concept of "rest" to the algorithm without any reversals of parameters at any point. I simply replace where we applied a reversal of the algorithm on every 7th year. I change it to non-use of the algorithm while staying in the market throughout that entire year. This provides us with more simplified outlook of this algorithm in tandem with the Judaic concepts of "every 7th year" and "rest." See next page.

The data indicates that this algorithm being applied since 1897 -- while applying only a non-use of the algorithm on every 7th year, while at the same time, staying in the market throughout the entirety of that 7th year-- yielded an investor around 97% of total Dow returns.... with that same investor only being in the market for, this time, a little more than half the time. Letting the algorithm rest during that 7th year of each 7 year cycle was effective for the overall outcome.

This provides us with a more simplified outlook that lends credence to Torah math and pattern recognition concepts.

The next data presentation will show how the Planet Mars operates with actual Shmita cycles. Because its posited that Satan uses the planet Mars as a vehicle to get through to humans, we would be wise not to discount His influence even during sabbatical timeframes. In this next data example, I present stats that show how the alternating sector algorithm fares when applied in tandem with avoiding market days when Mars is within 30 degrees of the lunar node during the Shmita year. Please note that the Shmita year in this data was extended one month if it ended while Mars was within 30 degrees of the lunar node.

In 2008, 2001, 1987, 1973, 1937, 1917, & 1916, the alternating sector algorithm in combination with avoiding Mars-within-30-degrees-of-the-lunar-node during the Shmita years outperformed the regular alternating sector algorithm that doesn't heed to Mars.

1980 was a year where avoiding Mars resulted in a significantly worse result than the original algorithm. Overall the algorithm in combination with avoiding Mars-within-30-degrees-of-the-lunar-node during the Shmita years performed slightly better than the algorithm being applied without observation of Mars.

Alternating Sector Algorithm in combination with avoiding Mars-within-30-degrees-of-the-lunar-node during the Shmita years resulted in 73% of total Dow returns while being in the market slightly less than half the time.

Alternating Sector Algorithm being applied without observation of Mars resulted in 69% of total Dow returns while being in the market just half the time.
